Rebels Retake City of Hankow

SHANGHAI, Oct. 31.—According to wireless messages received from the foreign warships in the Yangtze river, the rebels recaptured Hankow Sunday and poured a terrific fire into the imperial fleet forcing it to retreat 10 miles down the river.

Passengers have been warned to leave their possessions and flee. Reports say the battle is still raging.

As was suspected, the rebel defeat resulting in the loss of Hankow, was not serious. The rebels, outnumbered, retreated to Wuhan, were reinforced, and returned to engage the imperialists in conflict. The imperialists had been too busy looting the city to throw up intrenchments. The royalists claim the battle is still raging. It is feared many fugitives, who delayed leaving the city, have perished.

Returns Wheel; Case is Dropped

Frank Pittman, a 11 year old boy living on Fayette street, was arrested yesterday by Constable B. Rottler charged with the theft of a bicycle from Tony Welsh. The boy was given a hearing before Justice W. P. Clark last evening and claimed he had purchased the wheel from another boy. After hearing the evidence Justice Clark discharged the boy as the wheel was returned to its owner.

START LAYING TRACK ON ROAD NEXT WEEK

The last span on the Western Maryland bridge at Confluence is being put in place today and by the latter part of the week the bridge is expected to be completed and rails laid across it.

It was stated today at the office of Division Engineer J. L. Palmer that the railroad will begin next week to lay rails and push the line on from Confluence to Ohio. It is expected that by the time track has been laid to Ohio the work on this end of the line will be along far enough for the track layers to continue westward.

The Hill Construction Company is working above Greenwood. Several shafts were put out today. The work is being pushed forward steadily on the West Side. The steel work is rapidly being completed at the depot on the West Side.

We Announce a Demonstration By An Expert Corset Specialist of the Celebrated Binner Corset

Beginning October 30th, and Continuing Until November 11th

Miss Mara, an Expert Corsettiere, Will Give Fittings, and Demonstrate the Superiority of Binner Corsets. You are cordially invited to attend.

Binner Corsets are recognized by women of taste and refinement of the highest standard of merit. They are the product of the most expert corsettiere. The models on which they're constructed are absolutely correct as regards both style and hygiene; in other words, they do not only lend to the wearers the perfect, slender, graceful figure that Fashion demands of her devotee, but they also assure the height of comfort and lasting ease.

Miss Mara, who is demonstrating Binner Corsets at our store this week, will explain their general excellence in detail to all who come; and she's certain that she will have little difficulty in incontrovertibly proving the superlative qualities that elevate Binner Corsets far above all their contemporaries.

Binner Corsets sell from $7 to $100 the pair. You will find one an excellent investment, no matter what price you expend for it. The comfort you will derive from it, the marvelous service it will give you and the general perfection in its making all will combine to produce the highest satisfaction.

It is indeed a high honor and a compliment to our store, that we have been enabled and assisted by the manufacturers of Binner Corsets to provide this exhibition and demonstration. It will prove to be a memorable event to the fair femininity of Conneltsville, and we trust no woman will fail to come.

The fittings and demonstration start on October 30, and will be continued until November 11.

We carry a complete line of R. & G. Corsets. Fittings Free of Charge.

Life Insurance or Death Insurance—Which?

People willfully pay large sums for life insurance, which is really death insurance. It is a mistake to think of life insurance as a protection against death. It is a protection against the loss of income. The insurance company pays the sum insured to the beneficiary upon the death of the insured. This is a death insurance. Life insurance is a death insurance.

FITTING FREIGHT RATES TO JUSTICE.

The decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Alabama cases indicates quite clearly that the State Railway Commissions are as necessary as the traditional fifth wheel to the wagon.

If the Interstate Commerce Commission is empowered to deal with interstate as well as interstate commerce, the mission of the State Commissions is ended. They are practically put out of business.

It also becomes a serious question whether railroads operating wholly within a single State, and because of that fact acting independently of Federal regulations in such matters as rates and passes, will not have to revise their conduct.

The decision is in line with other deliberations indicating quite plainly that the trend of the times is to rule with an iron hand the business of the railroads, and that officials who formerly walked in on tiptoe must now walk the plank mark of a reformed, re-vivified and robust code of railway regulation.

The only danger in the situation lies in the fact that this regulation may become unjust and oppressive. The stockholders of these great enterprises have some rights which should not be lost sight of.

Freight rates should not be oppressive to the shipper nor profitable to the transportation interests. They should be equitable at all times; but they have always been arbitrary, and the process of moulding them to justice will necessarily be tedious.

It is evident, however, that the moulding will be done.

CONNELLSVILLE'S HALLOWEEN CELEBRATION.

Scotchdale celebrated Halloween last night, one day ahead of the festival as fixed by custom. But Scotchdale is entertaining and fond of fun. Its festive latered-flavored very accurately that a number of visitors would come from Connelleville and other points in the county to see the crowd and to add to the gaiety of the Mill Town, and they did.

There remains the further suspicion that many Scotchdale people will be Connelleville visitors tonight. It does not, we imagine, require the services of a prophet or the son of a prophet to reasonably and accurately predict that this will be the case.

If the Scotchdale and other neighbors visit us this evening, they will have the freedom of an Emburyville City. Every stranger will have a pass key, innocent joy will be unconfined and any vicious conduct severely dealt with, the festive spirit will be abroad and everybody with any capacity for fun will get their fill of it. Connelleville will be wide open for the merry-makers, but dead shut to all manner of rowdiness.

Halloween reform in Western Pennsylvania originated in Connelleville and will in Connelleville be maintained. The people have discovered that it is possible to have a good time without vicious and senseless practices.

THE PARTY LOYALTY OF A GOOD LOSER.

The Connelleville Herald has seen fit to define its political position in this campaign, because it explains that some people think "The Herald and its friends are puffed over the result of the recent primaries and that this puffedness will be carried into the election which will be held next Tuesday." This assumption, The Herald assures its readers, "is entirely erroneous," and it adds:

Heretofore in the present campaign this paper has not considered it necessary to state its position, it participated in the primary fight in the belief that it was appealing to the rank and file of the Republican party. It is quite true that the paper has been successful in its efforts to bring the party and the Herald into a Republican primary, and the Herald is a Republican newspaper, the details of party race here such that either a party or active participation of the Herald in the election would not only be possible, but worse. Politics is a science in a theoretical sense of the term. In the practical sense it is a game that has its fascinations as well as its responsibilities. And it is a game The Herald would never enter if it were to get into every time it did not win.

Each side cannot be winners, and the game must be called off. The Herald is a good loser. It is a game that has its fascinations as well as its responsibilities. And it is a game The Herald would never enter if it were to get into every time it did not win.

As The Herald has said before, it accepts the result of the primary on September 25 as the dictum of the party and it is the duty of the party to come out in the support of the ticket at the polls. The Herald's friends had won in the primaries this paper would expect loyalty in the succeeding election at the hands of those defeated, and expecting that loyalty it would be sounding the depths of political abasement for any of those defeated to play the baby now.

In a word, The Herald considered the primary results as decisive so far as it is concerned, and it hopes its friends who did not win in the primary contest will look at the matter in the same sensible light.

This declaration is straightforward, loyal, manly; but so far as The Courier is concerned it was altogether unnecessary. We have never thought that The Herald would assume any other attitude than that which it outlines above. However, if any others thought differently it was a natural and proper thing for The Herald to declare itself in language unequivocal and emphatic.

All the primary candidates cannot always win, and in politics one should be a good loser.

City Treasurer Ruter is reported to have lifted a number of severe bonds. Of course the City Treasurer found them with the city money. During a previous Democratic borough administration he had one money to $12,000. He was too busy considering certificates of indebtedness. In short, Ruter had a new $10,000 suit and he looks like a young country prospector—except his hair is cut.

The Chief of the Federal Bureau of Mines is doing some spectacular bonding, but it is not without a large measure of profit.

The Chinese Government has practically surrendered and China will become a constitutional monarchy. Republican government must and will eventually rule the world as sure as civilization prevails. An orderly republican government is more perfect and preferable than either the iron hand of imperialism or the red hand of socialism.

If President Taft returns to Connelleville tomorrow afternoon, we may have the pleasure of taking a look at him, and he might be persuaded to give us the real, genuine, unadorned Taft smile.

Connelleville gets free gas for its public schools, but we do not understand that we get a rebate. Under some circumstances money paid unwillingly has been declared to be money paid unlawfully, and may be recovered. On the other hand, it has been determined that money paid without protest may not be recovered, and it is certain that if the school district has at any time failed to take advantage of the money, it has for all practical purposes lost it.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union of Boston has discovered that women's work is a specific for drunkenness and recommends that every housewife buy a pint of this remedy daily and use it judiciously. The committee, small of a household would drive even a sober man to drink.

These people who insist upon sailing through the Niagara rapids must hanker for the fast life.

YUKON'S AIM.

By Isaac of Yukon.

YUKON, Oct. 28.—The town council, board of trade and board of health held a joint meeting last night in response and intent to pave the way for future progress of the city.

As soon as the meeting was called to order, eight men were elected members of the city committee with a sliding scale of fees and emoluments attached, and with power to name a committee to see to it that nothing is done in the valley. Oration followed in favor of securing a permanent future for the town. Since the concrete bridge is proving to be a great advantage to trade and better transportation, one speaker advocated the idea of building concrete walls around the town to keep wind and dust out and to keep the town clean and healthy. The idea was well taken.

Then motion was made to form a concrete wall board and enough of money was pledged for the salaries of the men who were to buy money from the taxpayers for the wall.

Florida Oldman suggested that $5,000 be raised to employ some men to buy thirty miles of the Great Wall of China and have it brought over. He said China is willing to sell her wall in sections for the entire lot. He thought a commission of live men with eminent domain salaries ought to be able to land part of the wall by next spring.

Money Fitzgerald said the wall would likely crack and crumble and it might lead the men to create a party for the manufacture of crowns for the American Cross and Honor society. The factory during the war would also make medals for the American Carnegie Hero Association. One wing of the building could be devoted to the making of blue ribbons for the ribbon race.

A half hour was devoted to the election of men for the various committees and naming their pay. Andy Hatfield McCoy said he had a machine to make salaries of any kind, large or small, and hoped that he would be given a permit to start a plant. He said his machine would make a solid mahogany salary and bring it with mother of pearl good enough for a European republic. His machine needs only one man to feed the money in at one end and the salaries drop out at the other end, folded and ready for sale.

Levi Glickstein, the furniture dealer, stated that he had bought the iron bulk of the old and abandoned ferry furnace and thought some one could buy it for a kiln for a noodle factory. He also reported that he had the Behlman cooking stove the scrap iron of Phoenix was cleared, the brass gates of Gaza and the scrap points which pierce Arnold Whitehead of which he was willing to sell at a cent on the dollar, forced to the wall sale to stay.

Abe Trilby said he had a firm which was seeking a location to manufacture Niagara Falls, Mammoth Caves, National Park, Pike's Peaks and Yosemite Falls. He said by putting a 50 cogwheel in the machine it would make too large, iron rods, valves for a church, sugar, folding beds, watch springs, coffin hinges and judgment notes.

Pat MacManus jumped up and swore in the language of Ireland that he believed Abe was lying. His protest was to the point and the meeting busted up right there.

Politics and Politicians.

Charles W. Fairbanks, former Vice President of the United States, is mentioned for the Republican nomination for Governor of Indiana.

Thomas S. Cull has resigned his position as registrar of the land office at Rapid City to make the race for the Republican nomination for governor of South Dakota.

John Sharp Williams, formerly Democratic leader of the house, and now United States senator from Mississippi, has announced his intention to support Governor Wilson of New Jersey for the presidential nomination.

Governor George W. Donaghy of Arkansas has broken his long silence with the announcement that he intends to be a candidate for a third term.

Milwaukee would like to have the Democratic national convention next year meet in her Auditorium, which is one of the largest convention halls in the country.

Congressman L. B. Hanna is out with a formal announcement of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor of North Dakota. Mr. Hanna belongs to the stalwart faction.

The Wisconsin branch of the National Progressive League is arranging to hold a meeting in Milwaukee early in December for the purpose of endorsing the candidate of Senator La Follette for the Republican presidential nomination.

Congressman Leonard of Wisconsin will be the principal speaker at Grand Forks, N. D., November 6, when the progressive Republicans of the State expect to launch a campaign for the control of the party in the presidential primaries.

Among the amendments of the constitution of the State of New York to be voted on at the election next week is one providing for an increase in the salary of the governor to $30,000 a year. The present salary is $10,000.

A political census of Kansas, just completed, shows that 71 women are holding public offices in that State, as follows: 15 county superintendents, 5 county clerks, 5 county treasurers, 1 district judge, 1 probate judge, and 1 mayor.

The speechmaking tour soon to be undertaken by Senator La Follette in furtherance of his presidential aspirations will last six or eight weeks and will embrace the democratic States of Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Oklahoma, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Mississippi and probably Ohio.

The primaries for the nomination of a Democratic candidate for governor of Louisiana will be held next January. Several candidates have already announced for the nomination. There is also a lively senatorial primary contest in progress. In which Senator Murphy J. Carter is seeking re-election with Governor Stephens and Congressman Brewster as opponents.

EXPERTS WITNESS MINE EXPLOSION

Test at Federal Government's Pit at Bruceton Big Success.

BEHRIS HURLED INTO THE AIR

There Was Some Delay in Touching Off Coal Dust in the Mine, the Explosion Being Delayed From the Afternoon Until Darkness Had Come.

A triple cloud of flame, laden with scores of burst bags of sand, blazing timbers and sections of solid concrete work, which was shot from the three exits of the experimental mine of the government at Bruceton, Pa., and followed by a continued roar of detonations, gave proof Monday night to a thousand coal producers from 20 States miners from every quarter of the country and experts from Mexico, France and other foreign lands that coal dust is one of the chief factors responsible for the death toll gathered in mine explosions. Indeed, no more awe-inspiring demonstration could have been devised than that carried to its climax by the first national mine safety demonstration under the auspices of the United States Bureau of Mines, American National Red Cross and the Pittsburgh Coal Operators' Association.

Fifteen hundred persons, including Director J. A. Holmes of the United States Bureau of Mines, and the foremost coal producers of the country, explosive authorities, the foreign delegates and several score women, were huddled in Bruceton by a special train of 15 coaches over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. "What a thrill!" declared in a peevish whisper. After a hasty walk of one-half mile and a two-hour delay under the most discouraging conditions they were rewarded with a prearranged explosion as realistic as any that ever occurred, with the exception of resultant loss of life.

The blowing up of the mine was scheduled for the early afternoon, but it was long after dark before the third effort was successful. At that time the strong, scattered in a soft field and on hills round about, was thoroughly chilled by the steady drizzle, but determined to await the outcome of the experiment. Finally the warning triple blast of the whistle was sounded. This was followed by a double alarm to take stations of safety and then three pistol shots rang out. The latter by previous arrangement, was the final warning.

Twice before the crowd had heard the same series of warnings and twice had been disappointed. But extra precautions had been taken to prevent failure. Just as all were about to seek the waiting trains there shot simultaneously through the gloom the long expected explosion. No one could discern at that hour the concrete mouth of the mine, the opening of the air shaft or the iron gallery at the third entrance. But to those familiar with the great preliminary tremors connected with mine disasters, the flutter of ground underfoot and the tremble of delicate instruments, it was known before the eye caught the flash that an explosion would take place.

From the mouth of the main gallery rushed a monster cloud of smoke, followed by a tongue of flame 200 feet long. Scarcely simultaneously another column of smoke came from the parallel air shaft, while from the iron gallery a third angry glare belched into the darkness.

Skyward from the whole, great flocks of sparks sprang, while in all directions sputtering timbers and small blazing particles shot in streaks through the trees and scattered in showers of red across an 800-foot gully.

So intense was the heat that trees broke into a blaze several feet from the ground and illuminated the mouth of the mine, showing a heavily laden car which had been at the mouth of the mine, 200 feet below in a basin of black water. Sand bags built up a buttress against the force of the explosion 130 feet from the mouth of the entrance littered the ground for 100 feet. The fan house by a splinter and demolished. Windows of the test and supply house were empty.

Then, while the air was still laden with smoke and gases, lights bobbed from the hills like glow worms. The two mine rescue teams from the Pittsburgh bureau of mines were preparing to enter the galleries.

A few of the more hardy laymen started plunging from their damp points of vantage. Shots of the members of the State constabulary and the megaphones of those connected with the demonstration halted them because of the danger of a second explosion.

The rescue men, however, springing to the three entries. Traversing the main gallery, the two cut off passages, the air gallery and that leading to the iron gallery, they found the chambers devoid of sand bags and supporting timbers, the fan house wrecked and the concrete face of the main entrance badly damaged. From the hills came cheers of the mine owners and operators who had been inclined to grow sarcastic. Director Holmes and the officials of the bureau were elated with the proof of that which the operators in great majority have ever denied—that coal dust is largely responsible for the disasters of the past.

At Bruceton the government's miners have driven a corridor through a vein of coal 750 feet. This is connected with a cut-off 40 feet long with a return air chamber of the same length. Connecting with this is an air take gallery ending in a long experimental iron tube. In addition a second cut-off connects the two main galleries. These comprise, in all, nearly 2,000 feet of galleries.

At the face of the mine, or that point placed farther from the mine opening, the charge of two pounds of black blasting powder was set in the coal and a wall of sand bags was built across the cut-off leading from the main corridor to the return air corridor and across this 130 feet from its mouth. Then along shelves, through-out the length of the 2,000 feet of corridors, 700 pounds of coal dust was sprinkled. It was this dust, according to the experts, which caused the resultant damage and which has had the same disastrous effect in other mine explosions.

Immediately after the arrival of the special train, the 1,500 visitors climbed the muddy incline railroad to the experimental station. The majority went directly to the mouth of the mine, 1,100 entered the shaft to see what a real mine is like. Among these were several women.

After the last of the crowd had emerged from the mine, Director Holmes gave the word to George S. Rice, chief mining engineer in charge of federal investigations in this section, to proceed. Mr. Rice signalled to Engineer L. M. Jones of the Bruceton station, to place his charge, and Mine Foreman Harry Howarth entered with his two pounds of blasting powder, which he jammed down in a hole drilled in the face of the mine. Then Physicists J. K. Clement and W. L. Eby took their stations in the concrete observation house and ropes were stretched to mark the danger lines.

The first two attempts proved failures, but when Mr. Eby turned the electrical current into the powder the third time at 6:10 o'clock, the great explosion followed.

"The test, with the exception of that of a few days ago at Bruceton," said Chief Engineer Rice, "was the first explosion under actual mine conditions ever made. It was successful in every way and such that no mine operator could have witnessed elsewhere. It will be invaluable in that it cannot fail to convince every mine owner that coal dust is the dangerous factor in digging coal."

The explosion was terrific and would have been even more so had the dust within the mine and the atmosphere been drier. As it was, sand bags 20 feet from the mouth and timbers were ejected at the velocity of a bullet and a laden car was lifted from its tracks and hurled into a gully. The demonstration was impressive in every way.

None was happier at the success of the explosion than Director Holmes. When the blast crashed from the mine he emitted an "Ah!" of relief. "We could not have had a better demonstration," said the director. "It was admirable in every way."

James McMahon, superintendent of the work of the Dominion Consolidated Companies of Nova Scotia, said: "It was a remarkable demonstration and I am glad I witnessed it."

J. W. Paul, head of the mine rescue work of the government, was in charge of teams of men who went into the mine following the explosion. Capt. A. A. Smith had charge of crew No. 1, with four men. Added to this number were six others from the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company's mines in Colorado. Crew No. 2 was in charge of William Burke and contained seven members. They represented the Stag Canyon Fuel Company, New Mexico.

An explosion of the methods to safeguard the lives of men who penetrate the depths of the earth was given in the morning at the arsenal grounds in the Lawrenceville district, where the first national mine safety demonstration was held. Government officials, including Secretary of the Interior Walter L. Fisher, mine operators and miners were present.

The detonations following the explosions could be heard for miles in some instances. Many of the miners and operators were supplied with pads and pencils immediately following the explosions, they rushed to the large steel gallery and made notes.

In an address Secretary Fisher declared the coal industry was the second largest industry in the country, being second only to the crop industry. He said that the lives of those who mine the coal should and will be protected, and he asked that both the miners and operators co-operate with the government authorities in this cause. Among the 2,000 spectators were many women.

At 10 o'clock Director Holmes delivered the address of welcome and introduced Secretary Fisher. He declared the government would furnish all the aid possible to keep the Pittsburgh station on a high plane. He assured those present that as the work progressed and developed the government would see that that station was equipped with the proper buildings. At the conclusion of the morning demonstration he stated he was highly pleased with the results.

The most realistic explosion occurred in Event No. 23, given in gallery No. 1. It showed the effect of a gas and dust explosion caused by ignition of blasting powder. This had a close resemblance to a blow-out shot in a mine. The gallery, a long steel tube, was banked with dirt and rocks. When the explosion occurred some of these were hurled 150 feet into the air.

Event No. 24 exemplified the benefits of having a hood over electrical cutting machines. The first test showed the cutting machine equipped with a hood. There was no explosion. When the same machine was used without a hood and under the same conditions there was a loud explosion, paper and wood in the tube being ignited.

Gov. John K. Tener, who witnessed the morning demonstration, could not make the trip to Bruceton, owing to other engagements.

Family Gather at Gerhard Home

Special to The Courier

SOVIETLY Oct. 31.—The home of Prothonotary and Mrs. J. B. Gerhard, in the West End, was the scene of a happy gathering yesterday, when the ninety-fourth birthday anniversary of Mr. Gerhard's uncle, the Rev. William Gerhard, of Martinsburg, W. Va., was celebrated with a family dinner. The venerable pioneer entered the ministry at the age of 30, and was actively engaged in preaching the Gospel until three years ago when he retired. He, with his parents and four brothers, emigrated from Germany to America in 1820. For some years he had charge of a Lutheran Seminary in North Carolina removing to Martinsburg at the outbreak of the Civil War, where he has since resided. He also filled various other pulpits, and was the Lutheran pastor at Martinsburg when he retired. The Rev. Mr. Gerhard has traced the history of his family back to Paul Gerhard, the noted German hymn writer of the seventeenth century. The following were present at yesterday's celebration: Mrs. William Gerhard, of Martinsburg, W. Va.; Mary A. Snyder, of Rockwood; William Gerhard, of Rockwood; Susan Soderler and Miss Elva Schroeder, of Kingswood; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dumbauld of Milford township, and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Gerhard, of Somerset township.

Corporal Edward P. Keefe of Somerset's military organization Company C, Fifth Regiment, N. G. P., has returned from Greensburg, where he qualified as an expert rifle shot. Mr. Keefe made a record of 357 points, 100 being the highest number. It is possible to make, being back with him the first gold medal for marksmanship ever displayed in Somerset.

Mrs. Edmund B. Barnett of the West End, is spending the week with Pittsburgh relatives.

Mrs. Green B. Klug and Miss Emma Ansell of Scullion, spent Sunday and yesterday with Prof. and Mrs. A. J. King on the South Side.

Honor Guest at Luncheon.

Miss Jesse Page Bryner, who is visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. O. Bryant at Edgewood park, Pittsburgh is honor guest at a small luncheon this afternoon in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association. A theatre party at the Grand will follow. Miss Bryner will return home tomorrow.

PERFECTION

Every mother should be careful that the children take their baths in a warm room. The chill of a cold room is dangerous after coming out of the hot water.

A Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater brings bathroom or bedroom to just the degree of warmth you want in five or ten minutes. All you have to do is to touch a match.

The Perfection Heater burns nine hours on one filling and is always ready for use. You can move it anywhere it is needed. There is no waste of fuel and heat warming unoccupied rooms. Just the heat you want, when and where you want it.

The Perfection is fitted with an automatic-locking flame spreader that prevents the wick being turned high enough to smoke and is easy to remove and drop back when cleaning.

Mustard's Quick Relief Without the Blister!

You remember the good old-fashioned mustard plaster.

Your mother and your grandmother used to apply it whenever you had a cold, an ache or a pain.

It burned like sixty, but it surely did the work.

Here is the old family remedy, greatly improved by science and put in Twentieth Century form—

THE QUICK AND BLESSED RELIEF WITHOUT THE BLISTER OF THE MUSTARD, OR THE BOTHER AND MESSINESS OF THE PLASTER.

MUSTEROLE is a clean, white ointment, made with the oil of mustard. For MUSTEROLE, the oil of the highest grade of mustard is refined until it is as pure as human skill can make it.

You simply rub it on the spot where the pain is—rub it on briskly—and the pain is gone!

Not a blister is left even on tender skin! Instead it has a delicious, comforting effect.

Football Notes.
The officials of last year's Harvard Yale game have been selected for this year's game without discussion.
The University of Pennsylvania team has a new quarterback in Barr, who looks strong enough to make good.
Michigan seldom runs up big scores against the little fellows, but as a rule plays a great game against the heavy boys.
The tallest man on the Carlisle Indians squad is Long Beach, a tackle who stands 6 feet 4 1/2 inches, and the shortest player is Jackson, a half-back, who is only 5 feet 1 inch high.
Owing to the fact that practically the whole fleet will be off New York on November 25, the date of the Army Navy game at Philadelphia, the demand for seats for the contest is greater than ever before.
Paul Wheeler, Yale's old half-back, is coaching the Pitt backs at New Haven.
Harvard and Yale have not crossed each other's goal since Yale turned the trick in 1907. There should be something doing in the 1911 game. Seven-eleven.
Jack Bowler, the trainer sits at the training table with the Dartmouth players to see that they eat little meat.
West Point deferring Yale two years in succession is quite a record for the Cadets.
Boyle of the Michigan eleven kicked a placement goal from the 50-yard line in the Michigan-Ohio State university game.
One of the features of the Georgia-Carolina fair at Augusta will be the annual football game between Clemson and the University of Georgia.

Great Review of Naval Vessels at New York; President to Go There Tomorrow from Morgantown

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—One hundred and two vessels of the American Navy, the largest fleet ever assembled under the Stars and Stripes, in their greatest holiday dress, were reviewed by Secretary of the Navy Meyer today, while hundreds of thousands, ashore and afloat, saw the spectacle. The aggregate tonnage of the assembled war vessels was over one-half million as compared with less than one-third of this total present at the naval review by President Roosevelt in Hampton Roads five years ago. The aggregation of American dreadnoughts and smaller sisters, taking part in today's spectacle represented approximately the huge outlay of $200,000,000.

Dressed from stem to stern in a riot of bunting, the gray lines of the warships, with a background formed by the Palisades, beautiful in the autumn foliage, made a magnificent spectacle as viewed from Riverside Park and other points of vantage on the Manhattan side of the river.

On the broad bosom of the Hudson the vessels floated at anchor in three columns, each eight miles long, stretching from a point about opposite Fifty-seventh street up the river to the mouth of Spuyten Duyvil Creek. Proceeding from the lower extremity of the columns, Secretary Meyer, standing on the bridge of the naval yacht Mayflower and surrounded by his aides and a number of invited guests, went northward through the lines formed by the battleships, cruisers, torpedo boats and destroyers, submarines and naval auxiliaries. All the while the ships kept up a roar of salutes. The ships' sides were manned by blue jackets at attention, the quarterdecks were thronged with officers and marine guards, redecoated bands played the national air, while "hoanna" whistles piped out the order of the day.

At the completion of its progress through the anchored lines the Mayflower took up its station near the tugboat Connecticut. Rear Admiral Osterhaus, the commander of the fleet, and all of the flag and commanding officers boarded the yacht and were received by Secretary Meyer on the quarterdeck. As the officers, in full dress uniform, came over the side of the yacht they were greeted by the blast of bugles, the rattle of drums and finally by a cannon salute from the chief officer of the Navy Department.

Of the warships taking part in the great demonstration six were battleships of the dreadnought class. They were the Florida, Utah, Delaware, South Carolina, North Dakota and Michigan. In addition there was a splendid array of first class battleships of the Connecticut type, numbering all told, six ships—the Minnesota, New Hampshire, Kansas, Vermont, Louisiana and Connecticut. Added to these were the battleships of the type represented by the Idaho and the Mississippi, five of the Virginia type, being, besides that ship, the Georgia, New Jersey, Nebraska, and Rhode Island, and of the Missouri type, including that vessel, the Ohio and the Maine.

These are the ships upon which the United States would rely in time of war to do the actual fighting. The tonnage of these battleships is close to 400,000, and the broadside of the big guns they could fire would mean a hail of 13-inch and 12-inch projectiles weighing approximately 113,000 pounds, while a broadside of all guns of all sizes would total at least 150,000 pounds.

In addition to the great battleships the long lines of fighting machines include the two big armored cruisers Washington and North Carolina, the fast flying scout cruiser Salem, the unprotected cruisers Des Moines and San Francisco, a fleet of gunboats, five destroyers of torpedo boat destroyers and torpedo boats, eight of the latest and finest submarines in the world, and a fleet of splendid naval auxiliaries.

Small wonder, then, that a crowd estimated at fully 1,000,000 persons turned out to view the great naval spectacle. All the vantage along both shores of the river were black with masses of people, while excursion craft of every description carried thousands of spectators as close to the vessels of the fleet as the alert little patrol boats would permit. During the early forenoon the trains arriving in the metropolis brought great crowds of sightseers from all over New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and even distant points in the West and in New England.

Life of the Steel Corporation's Coal Holdings in the Connellsville Coke Region Not Unlimited; Relation of Present Freight Rate Fight Thereto.

PITTSBURGH, October 25.—The H. C. Frick Coke Company owns and controls 21,000 acres of coal in the Connellsville region. Operated to their capacity these mines will consume 10,000,000 tons of coal annually, or approximately 1,000 acres. The average beecher on running full and being charged and drawn every other day in the week consumes 900 tons of coal and produces 6000 tons of coke.

The H. C. Frick Coke Company is the reputed owner of 68,000 acres of Connellsville coking coal plus its purchase of the 10,000 acres of the Pittsburgh Coal Company. This includes its Greene county holdings purchased some years ago and not yet developed. The full operation of its plants would exhaust this coal in 39 years if the plants were operated continuously and fully; if operated on the present basis of about two-thirds active, the supply would last approximately half a century; but, if the demands of the company necessitate new plants, the supply will last less than 20 years, perhaps not more than 15 years, especially since the freight rate adjustment will tend to increase shipments from the Pittsburgh-Connellsville fields.

Judge E. H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, in an address to the international congress of steel masters last year, stated that with a normal increase in the population in the United States, and with slightly increased use of iron per capita, due to increased use of labor-saving mechanical devices, cranes and steel in place of wood in construction, the increased use of transportation in commerce, the iron production of the world would probably reach 38,000,000 to 40,000,000 tons annually by the year 1920.

It is reasonably supposed that the United States Steel Corporation's fuel in the Pittsburgh district will not last over 25 years, if this forecast is within range, and that it is a reasonable forecast no one will doubt.

In the Pittsburgh coal seam in Western Pennsylvania, 100,000,000 tons is now being mined annually, that is exhausting this limited field at the rate of over 10,000 acres of coal per year; or in other words, an acreage equal to that owned by the Steel Corporation would be exhausted in about seven years.

Gas and coke will be the fuels of the future. We have the best gas coal and best coking coal for the production of gas and coke for metallurgical purposes. In the total it is just as rich in by-products as any other.

ECZEMA REMEDY ALSO WASHES PIMPLES AWAY

No remedy that I have ever sold for Eczema, Psoriasis, and all other diseases of the skin has given more thorough satisfaction than D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema.

A 25c trial bottle can be secured at once.

My patrons find that D. D. D. not only gives instant relief to the itching, burning skin, quickly driving out all the disease germs, but it is also the most delightful wash for the complexion (day over used). Absolutely harmless and pleasant to use. D. D. D. cleanses the skin of all minor impurities, such as pimples and pimples, over night, and leaves the skin clear and smooth as that of a child.

It is now generally known that there is nothing that can equal D. D. D. as a household remedy for all skin troubles, no matter what they are.

I, myself, am so fully convinced of the merits of this wonderful remedy that we will charge you nothing if the first full size bottle of D. D. D. does not make good every claim.

Better drop in and talk it over with us anyhow.

PUTS AN END TO INDIGESTION AND A SOUR, GASSY STOMACH

A Little Diapiesin Relieves Bad Stomach in Five Minutes.

As there is often some one in your family who suffers an attack of indigestion or some form of Stomach trouble, why don't you keep some Diapiesin in the house, because this harmless blessing will digest anything you can eat without the slightest discomfort, and overcome a sour, gassy Stomach, five minutes after.

Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula, plainly printed on these 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapiesin, then you will readily see why it makes indigestion, Sour Stomach, Heartburn and other distress go in five minutes, and relieves at once such miseries as Belching of Gas, Bructions of sour, undigested food, Nausea, Headaches, Dizziness, Constipation and other Stomach disorders.

Some folks have tried so long to find relief from Indigestion and Dyspepsia or an out-of-order stomach with the common, every-day cures advertised that they have about made up their minds that there is something else wrong or better. In this case of Nervousness, Gastritis, Catarrh of the Stomach or Cancer.

This, no doubt, is a serious mistake. Your real trouble is, what you eat does not digest, instead, it ferments and sours, turns to acid, Gas and Stomach poison, which poisons the digestive tract and intestines, and, besides, poisons the breath with nauseous odors.

A hearty appetite, with thorough digestion, and without the slightest discomfort or misery of the Stomach, is waiting for you as soon as you decide to try Pape's Diapiesin.

also nearer industrial centers. Some of the mountain coal of Virginia and West Virginia are of high grade carbon, but their remoteness from market and their irregularity in bed and quality, should cause them to be regarded with less favor than our nearby fields. The transportation interests have persistently refused to concede the Pittsburgh District her just dues in the way of transportation. Not the industrial Commission but the Interstate Commerce Commission will be depended upon to adjust the situation; and that adjustment not only means prosperity to the operators, but much to the transportation interests, who depend upon the solvency and prosperity of the coal and coke business for their large returns.

The rights of our people demand that all community of interest be done away with and that Southwestern Pennsylvania be given its long delayed just dues.

MORGANTOWN READY
West Virginia Town in Gala Attire For the President.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 30.—Morgantown will be in gala dress for the reception of President Taft next Wednesday morning. The principal streets will be decorated, as well as every business-house. The national colors will be intermingled with the West Virginia University colors, old gold and blue, as the President's visit here is in connection with the inauguration of President Hodges at the university. Mr. Taft's official visit will begin at 9 o'clock when he will be taken through the city in an automobile.

At 9:30 the presidential party will breakfast at the home of Dr. I. C. White, president of the State and of the Morgantown boards of trade. At 10:30 he will address the school children on the lawn of Dr. White's residence.

The 2,000 pupils of the city schools will parade to the White lawn. At 11 o'clock the President will deliver an address in Commencement hall, and at noon he will lunch with President Hodges of the university.

Governor William E. Glasscock and his staff will be present to receive the President. The postoffice, county and city offices and business houses will close during the visit of President W. H. Taft here next Wednesday morning. By special order from the Postoffice Department, the local office will be closed from 9 A. M. till 12 noon. The city carriers will make no morning trip, and the rural carriers will not start on their routes until after noon.

ZEMO MAKES ASTONISHING ECZEMA CURES.

"WE PROVE IT."
Every day ZEMO gives relief and cures men, women and children in every city and town in America whose skins are on fire with torturing ECZEMA rashes and other itching, burning, scaly, and crusted skin and scalp humors.

ZEMO and ZEMO (ANTISEPTIC) SOAP, two refined preparations will give you such quick relief that you will feel like a new person.

We give you three reasons why we recommend and endorse ZEMO and ZEMO SOAP for all skin and scalp eruptions.

1st. They are clean, scientific preparations that give universal satisfaction and are pleasant and agreeable to use at all times.

2nd. They are not experiments, but are proven cures for every form of skin or scalp affection, whether on infants or grown persons.

3rd. They work on a new principle. They do not glaze over the surface, but they penetrate to the seat of the trouble, and draw the germ life from underneath the skin and destroy it. In this way a complete cure is effected in any case of SKIN OR SCALP ERUPTION.

Queen of Denmark.

Queen Louise, the consort of King Frederick VIII. of Denmark, was born October 31, 1851, the daughter of King Charles XV. of Sweden and Norway.

Her marriage with King Frederick, then the crown prince of Denmark, took place in Stockholm, in 1880. The royal couple have eight children, four sons and four daughters. The eldest is Prince Christian, heir apparent to the throne, who is forty-one years old.

The second son, Prince Charles, married Princess Ingeborg, daughter of King Edward VII. and is now King Haakon of Norway.

The third child of the Danish royal couple is Princess Louise, wife of Prince Frederick of Schaumburg-Lippe. The fourth, Prince Harold, is unmarried. The fifth, Princess Ingeborg, is the wife of Prince Charles of Sweden. The other three are Princess Thyra, Prince Gustav, and Princess Dagmar. Queen Louise, the mother of this interesting family, is the richest woman among European royalty. Her personal fortune is said to amount to more than thirty million dollars, which she inherited from her father and from her mother's father, Prince Frederick of the Netherlands.

CHAPTER XXI.

But there came the day, one year, in early April, when Dede sat in an easy chair on the porch, sewing on certain small garments, while Daylight read aloud to her. It was in the afternoon, and a bright sun was shining down on a world of new green. Along the irrigation channels of the vegetable garden streams of water were flowing, and now and again Daylight broke off from his reading to run out and change the flow of water. Also, he was tensely interested in the certain small garments on which Dede worked, while she was radiant with happy over them, though at times, when his tender fun was too insistent, she was really confused or affectionately resentful. It was a few minutes later that Daylight, breaking off from his reading to change the streams of irrigation, found that the water had ceased flowing. He shouldered a pick and shovel, took a hammer and a pipe-wrench from the tool-house, and returned to Dede on the porch.

"I reckon I'll have to go down and dig the pipe out," he told her. "It's that slide that's threatened all winter. I guess she's come down at last."

"Don't you read ahead, now," he warned, as he passed around the house and took the trail that led down the wall of the canyon.

Halfway down the trail, he came upon the slide. It was a small affair, only a few tons of earth and crumbling rock; but, starting from fifty feet above, it had struck the water-pipe with force sufficient to break it at a connection. Before proceeding to work, he glanced up the path of the slide, and he saw what made his eyes startle and, close for the moment from queasy fear.

"Hello," he murmured aloud, "look who's here."

His glance moved on up the steep broken surface, and across it from side to side. Here and there, in places, small tufts of vegetation were rooted precariously, but in the main, save for weeds and grass, that portion of the canyon was bare. There were signs of a surface that had shifted often as the rain poured a flow of rich eroded soil from above over the lip of the canyon.

"A true fissure, eh, or I never saw one," he proclaimed softly.

Dropping the hammer and pipe-wrench, he retained pick and shovel, he climbed up the slide to where a vague line of outcropping but mostly soil-covered rock could be seen. He was all but indecipherable, but his practiced eye had sketched the hidden information which it signified. Here and there, along this wall of the vein, he attacked the crumbling rock with the pick and shoveled the encumbering soil away. Several times he examined this rock. So soft was some of it that he could break it in his fingers. "Shifting a dozen feet higher up, he again attacked with pick and shovel. And this time, when he rubbed the soil from a chunk of rock and looked, he straightened up suddenly, gasping with delight. And then, like a deer at a drinking pool in fear of its enemies, he flung a quick glance around to see if any eyes were staring upon him. He grinned at his own foolishness and returned to his examination of the chunk. A slant of sunlight fell on it, and it was all aglow with day specks of unmistakable free gold.

"From the grass roots down," he muttered in an awe-stricken voice, as he swung his pick into the yielding surface.

Sometimes he started small shivers of earth that covered up his work and compelled him to dig again. Once he was aware fifty feet above the vein-stone, but he floundered and scrambled up again without pausing for breath. He hit upon quartz that was so rotten that it was almost like clay, and here the gold was richer than ever. It was a veritable treasure chamber. For a hundred feet up and down he traced the walls of the vein. He even climbed over the canyon lip to look along the brow of the hill for signs of the outcrop. But that could wait, and he hurried back to his find.

He coiled on in the same mad haste, until exhaustion and an intolerable ache in his back compelled him to pause. He straightened up with even a richer piece of gold-laden quartz, stooping the sweat from his forehead and fallen to the ground. He now ran into his eyes, blinding him. He wiped it from him with the back of his hand and returned to a scrutiny of the gold. It would run like this all season, he knew that. And he was gazed upon the yellow lure, and panted, for air, and wiped the sweat away, his quick vision leaped and set to work. He saw the spur-track that must run up from the valley and across the upland pastures, and he ran the grades and built the bridge that would span the canyon, until it was real before his eyes. Across the canyon was the place for the mill, and there he erected it; and he erected, also, the endless chain of buckets, suspended from a cable and operated by gravity, that would cross the canyon to the quartz-crobbler. Likewise, the whole mine, now before her approaching the door, and kept his head turned resolutely toward the valley. And next, he thrilled, as he was wounded. Fully Sunday evening while hunting with companions near his home. He was shot accidentally by a companion with a revolver. The bullet entered the head behind the jaw and penetrated the brain. The injured boy was removed to the Latrobe hospital and the bullet was removed. His recovery is doubtful.

know what I'm going to do?—I'm going to plant 'em all over it. They'll hold it. I'll plant them thick as grass, so that even a hungry rabbit can't squeeze between them; and when they get their roots going, nothing in creation will ever move that dirt again."

"Why, is it as bad as that?"

"No, it's not. But I'd sure like to see any blamed old slide get the best of me. I'm going to seal that slide down so that it'll stay there for a million years. And when the last trump sounds, and Sonoma Mountain and all the other mountains pass into nothingness, that old slide will be still a-standing there, held up by the roots."

He passed his arm around her and pulled her down on his knees.

"Say, little woman, you are also a lot of living here on the ranch, music, and theaters, and such things. Don't you ever have a hankering to drop it all and go back?"

So great was his anxiety that he dared not look at her, and when she laughed and shook her head he was aware of a great relief. Also, he noted the "mildness" of the youth, as he thought that same old-time boyish laugh of hers.

"Say," he said, with sudden fierceness, "don't you go fooling around that slide until after I get the trees in and rooted. It's mighty dangerous, and I sure can't afford to lose you now."

He drew her lips to his and kissed her hungrily and passionately.

"What a lover!" she said; and pride in him and in her own womanhood was in her voice.

"Look at that, Dede," he removed one encircling arm and swept it in a wide gesture over the valley and the mountains beyond. "The Valley of the Moon—a good name, a good name. Do you know, when I look out over it all, and think of you and of all it means, it kind of makes me ache in the throat, and I have things in my heart I can't find the words to say, and I have feeling that I can almost understand Browning and those other high-flying poet-fellows. Look at Hood Mountain there, just where the sun's striking. It was down in that crease that we found the spring."

"And that was the night," you didn't milk the cows all day, did you?" she laughed. "And if you keep me here much longer, supper won't be any easier than it was that night."

Both rose from the bench, and Daylight caught up the milk-pail from the nail by the door. He paused a moment longer to look out over the valley.

"It's sure grand," he said.

"It's sure grand," she echoed, laughing joyfully at him and with him and herself and all the world, as she passed in through the door.

THE END.

Horse-Loving Xenophon.

We may find different types of horses, and we may harness and use them differently; but the points of excellence that combine to form the most perfect horse are no different in one age than another. Xenophon, it is true, attached some importance to points that we care much less about now—such as, a straight round back that is easy to sit upon, which was owing to the fact that the Greeks did not use saddles, but only a cloth, fastened to the horse's body by a surcingle; but these are minor matters. He knew the points of a good horse, and he knew horse nature. And he had, too, that delight in horses that is found only in the true horseman, the man who loves as well as knows them. "It is upon horses," says he, "that gods and heroes are painted riding; and men who are able to manage them skillfully are regarded as deserving of admiration. So extremely beautiful and admirable and noble a sight is a horse that bears himself superbly that he fills the gaze of all who see him, both young and old; no one, indeed, leaves him or is tired of contemplating him as long as he continues to display his magnificent attributes."—From the Atlantic.

Shipbuilding in China.

According to a Shanghai telegram, the Chinese government accepted the bid of the Kiangnan Arsenal for the construction of four warships at about 1,500,000 taels. The arsenal, under control of King-Kiang, "Wing-wei," engages principally in the manufacture of arms. Although it has equipment for shipbuilding, it has not turned out any warships in the history of its existence for the last twenty-odd years, its experience so far having only consisted in putting together gunboats that were built in foreign countries.

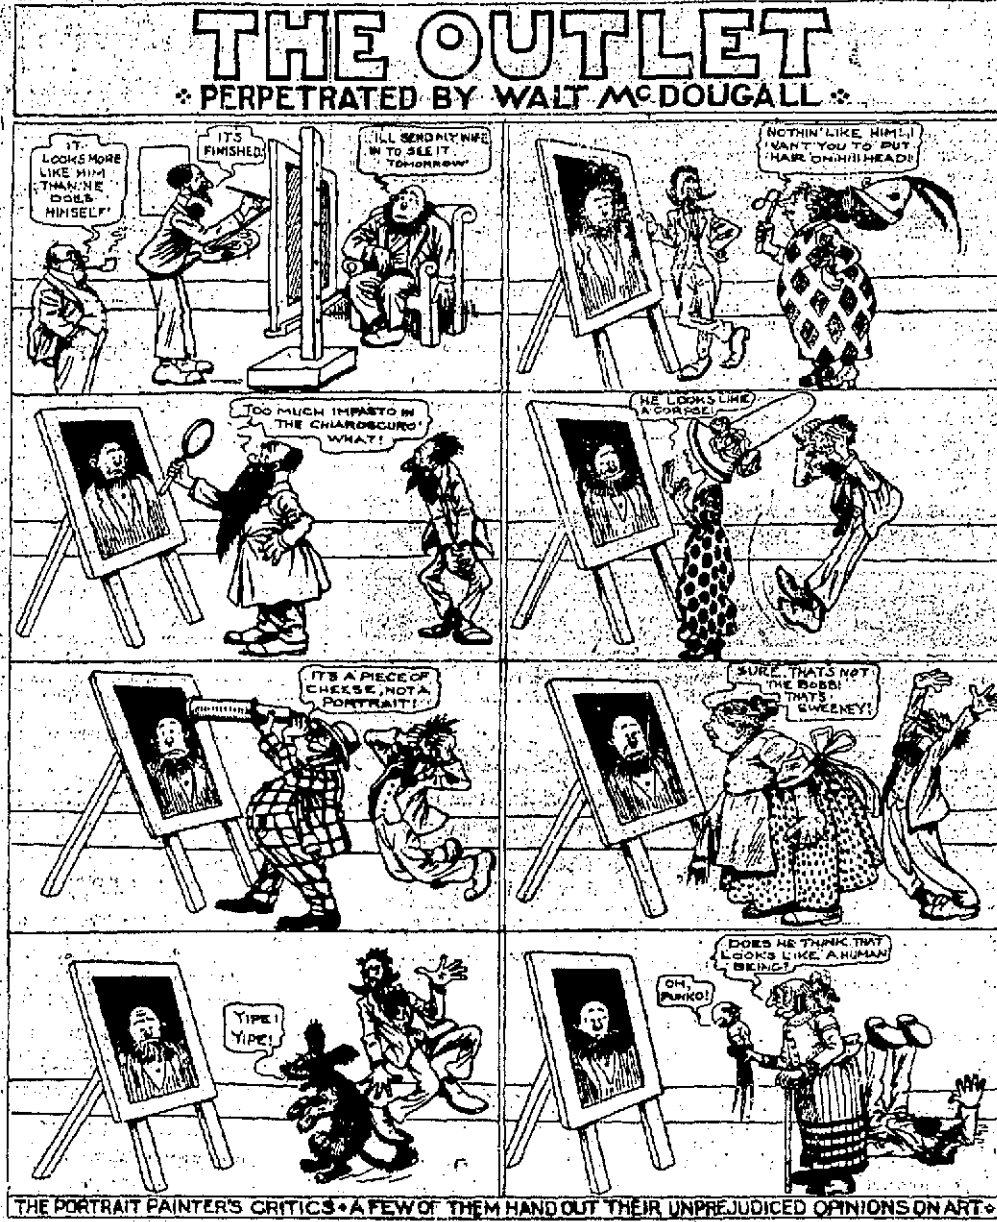

Again, at the Mamel dockyard at Fukien one gunboat was constructed in 1899 and another in the following year, which were completed in 1902. But they were small ships, each having the displacement of 800 tons. The present order consists of two gunboats with the displacement of 1,000 tons each and two smaller river gunboats. Inasmuch as the Mamel dockyard is under the management of French people, this is the first time that China has ever attempted to build her own warships at her own dockyard.

"Boy Accidentally Shot."

ATROBE, Oct. 30.—William Beaton, aged 17, son of Foster Beaton, of near Perry, perhaps was wounded. Fully Sunday evening while hunting with companions near his home. He was shot accidentally by a companion with a revolver. The bullet entered the head behind the jaw and penetrated the brain. The injured boy was removed to the Latrobe hospital and the bullet was removed. His recovery is doubtful.

Philosophy of the Unsuccessful.

We are perhaps too prone to get our ideas and standards of worth from the successful, without reflecting that the interpretations of life which patriotic legend, copy-book philosophy, and the sayings of the wealthy give us, are pitifully inadequate for those who fall behind in the race. Surely there are enough people to whom the task of making a decent living and maintaining themselves and their families in their social class, or of winning and keeping the respect of their fellows, is a hard and bitter task, to make a philosophy gained through personal disability and failure as just and true a method of approaching life as around us as the cheap optimism of the ordinary professional man. And certainly a kindlier, for it has no shade of contempt or disparagement about it.—Atlantic.

Father and Three Sons on Trial.

JACKSON, Ga., Oct. 30.—(Special.) A special session of the Butts county court convened today for the trial of William Turner and his three sons, who are charged with murder. Lumbago & Rheumatism

Cure it quickly. Rub on Baby's Rubbing and pain will vanish. Nothing so good for corns, bunions, eczema, sore throat or chest, rheumatism, neuralgia, stiff joints, carache, toothache, headache, etc. So sure it's Baby's Rubbing. Clarke guarantees it. 25c.

A stately, solemn Indian, close-wrapped in a most peaceful-looking blanket, slouched into the courtyard of the Detroit fort one spring day in 1763. At his heels followed a throng of savages, each wearing the peace-blanket and carrying some article of sale. A mass homeless crowd of Indians, apparently, could not have been found in all America.

So carefully were the blankets arranged that the keenest eyes could not have discovered the arsenal of rifles, knives and tomahawks that were hidden beneath their folds. The leader of the supposedly peaceful visitors was Pontiac, was chief of three northwestern tribes and one of the greatest Indians in all history. His was the plan for entering the Detroit stockade at the head of his bravest men, disguising the whole party as a band of traders. Having entered the fort, the blankets were to be cast aside, the guns thrown and the larger body of hidden Indians and the defenseless English garrison and townsfolk massacred.

A Massacre That Failed.

But an Indian girl had whispered the secret to the commandant of the garrison. So, when Pontiac stalked into the enclosure, he found the walls bristling with armed and prepared soldiers. "It was a venture on which hung his entire career; perhaps the whole future of America's colonies. And the trick had failed. Yet Pontiac's heavy copper-colored features showed no disappointment as he calmly stalked out again at the head of his baffled followers and proceeded to lay siege to the place.

Pontiac was born on the Ottawa river, Canada, in 1720. He early became chief of the Ottawa, Ojibwa and Potawatomi tribes. France ruled Canada in those days. The northern Indians loved the French. The English never had the knack of getting on with the savages. But the French had. Hence, while the Indians were forever fighting the English, they were almost always France's loyal friends. When, in 1746, the French garrison at Detroit was threatened, Pontiac and his braves rescued the fort from peril. In 1755, when the British general, Braddock, blundered into a French and Indian death-trap near Pittsburgh, Pontiac is said to have led the Indian section of the attack.

Then, in 1760, when the French lost Canada to the English, a New Hampshire officer—Major Rodgers—marched to take possession of that fort. Four hundred Indians lay in ambush to destroy the troops. Pontiac persuaded the 400 lurking savages to give up the idea of attack. Then he met the colonists and escorted them safely to Detroit. He was prepared to be the Englishmen's friend. But the colonists did not treat him as he thought so great a chief ought to be treated. His friendship turned to hate. He plotted to destroy every Englishman in the west.

The Great Conspiracy.

The Indians have seldom stood together in any strong or permanent confederation. Yet such was Pontiac's genius that he combined numbers of tribes into one mighty league against the English. He mapped out a fine plan of campaign. "There were 13 important frontier forts held by the colonists. Pontiac arranged that at a certain date each of these forts was to be attacked and destroyed and the surrounding country ravaged. He himself moved against Detroit. The Indian girl's treason to her people saved that fort from surprise. Pontiac then besieged Detroit. But Indians have not the knowledge to conduct a long siege. When once the Detroit garrison sallied forth against Pontiac's camp, the colonial troops were driven back again with terrific loss of life. But Pontiac was forced to give up the siege. This winter the British plan of conquest. For though the Indians captured eight of the twelve forts and spread terror throughout the western settlements, yet Detroit had been the key to the whole situation. And Pontiac's failure to capture that stronghold had cost him the trust of many of his followers. Some of the tribes deserted. The war dragged on until 1765. Then a treaty was signed with the English, an Pontiac became outwardly peaceable again. The great conspiracy had failed. Before another could be formed a Kaskaskia Illinois Indian, in 1779, was bribed by an English trader to murder Pontiac. The price offered for the crime was a barrel of whiskey.

The Illinois assassin crept up behind Pontiac in the forest and treacherously killed him. The mighty chieftain was buried at St. Louis with military honors, and his adoring followers avenged his death by nearly wiping out every Indian tribe and family in all Illinois.

Mad! Well, Rather!

"What's the matter with your wife? She seems very irascible lately."

"Why, she was assisting at a rummage sale and somebody sold her new hat for 35 cents."

A Gentle Hint.

"Is your dog a photographer?"

"Now what makes you ask a fool question like that?"

"I merely noticed that he trips to snap everybody he meets."

Wants, for rent, for sale, etc. cost only one cent a word.

HALLOWE'EN CROWD AT SCOTSDALE

The Spirit of '76 by the Volunteer Firemen Was Magnificent.

BIG BILL TAFT WAS PRESENT

Costumes and Marching Surpassed
All Previous Demonstrations—The Crowd Will Divide Between Connellsville and Mt. Pleasant Tonight.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, Oct. 31.—In every way, size and magnificence particularly, the Halloween parade
last night surpassed all previous demonstrations of this nature. And this too, despite an afternoon of rain and gloom that forecasted only failure.
However, the rain ceased from about 6 to 10:30 o'clock and the wearers of the costumes and dainty costumes were afforded an opportunity to appear without damage.

Over 10,000 people were in town, and well toward a thousand of these took part in the parade. Besides this there were many in mask who contented themselves with the role of spectators. There were many really beautiful costumes, and the comic ones were galore. The first prize, $20 in gold, went to the Scottdale Fire Department. They were magnificent, appearing under the banner "The Spirit of '76." The entire department was costumed in the rich Colonial garb with white powdered wigs and carrying rifles, marching in a long division, that showed them off well.
They were headed by the drummers,
and Clark McPherson as Uncle Sam, almost seven feet tall. This entire body expects to join in Connellsville's celebration this evening.

Mt. Pleasant, as well as Connellsville, had a large number of visitors present, and more than that they took part in the pageant, the Mt. Pleasant Municipal Band heading the Mt. Pleasant Volunteer Fire Department, the latter in their dress uniforms making a fine appearance, and winning the second best marching prize, $10 in gold. Youngwood had also arranged to come but the rain caused them to abandon the plan.

There were many horseback riders, cowboys, Indians, scouts, clowns, and Dutchmen, about 30 sorcerers being out. John Ryan of Everett won the prize of $10 for the best float, a wagon filled with decorated barrels and according to great style. Arthur J. Porter with a handsomely decorated four-horse hay wagon, lighted with pumpkin lanterns, and sounding a big brass dinner bell as the wagon moved along took the prize for the best farmer's wagon, $5 in gold. He had his wagon loaded with friends from the country.
James B. Fretts of the Hillside Fruit Farm, with a two-horse wagon, with a big apple tree planted in the wagon, and a barrel of cider, which was handled out in tin cups as the parade moved along, was also a notable exhibit.
There were also several other wagons and single teams.

Frank Kenney again won the prize
as the best lady luminescent, hand-someness, grace, and wearing a large picture hat. He received a $5 head prize. Joe Kenney as a great white leghorn chicken, with Margery Lowe, Margery Miller and Emma Joe Kenney
as the three chicks, won a fine feature and won a prize. Other features were a tall giraffe, P. G. Lattman with two Angora goats drawing little wagons,
"Scottdale New Field Fire Department," made up of little fellows in gun boots and firemen's helmets, and wearing cards inscribed with the names of veteran fire fighters, among them Dave Griffith, Newt Porter,
"Fat" Collins, "Stoodle" McClain and others made a hit. Sweettown Fire Department was another hit in the comics.

The $5 automobile robe went to the auto driven by Don Leonard continued to represent the red gentleman with the spearpoint tail. This auto carried one of the great hits of the parade.
President Taft was said to be in Pittsburg last night, but it seems that he came down the branch to attend Scottdale's Halloween. At least he was there in all his judicial bulk and dignity in the Leonard auto. He carried a transparency "My Policies Reel-ly: If somebody takes your un-derella steal another." "Arbitration; If the other fellow agrees, no fight." It transpired that "Big Bill" was Albert
J. Strickler, with a mask that depicted Mr. Taft to the letter, and carried in a suit of A. J. Thomas, the merchant.

There were five costumes without number and humorous features that deserved the most favorable mention.
The smaller prizes and their winners will not be known until they call at J.
C. Stouffer's drug store with the prize cards handed them by the judges.
The Grand Army Band, the Municipal Band, the Firemen's drum corps, the Boy Scouts of America, the cowboys, the Colored Band and the Colored K. of P. were all showy organizations in the pageant which was the largest and longest ever in Scottdale. The best of order was preserved during the entire time of the festivities, as everyone had a pleasant time. The streets were brilliantly and beautifully illuminated with a large number of electric arches of multi-colored lights strung across them, and not a few stores and private residences were gayly decorated with Halloween colors and lanterns, some of the show windows being fixed out with figures emblematic of the evening. Raygor's store had three life size Halloween figures in their windows, everything else being removed to show the figures to the best advantage. Other stores were decorated in other ways.

The entire event was a joyous one,
and the young folks from the little towns, some of whom were hauled in wagons or were pulled by older people in small buggies fixed up for the occasion to the larger ones found a great deal of delight in the evening.
While there had been rain there was also a very pleasant warm atmosphere that everyone kept comfortably warm. It was a night that proved the worth of such a celebration taking the place of the old time vandalism, and giving everyone a chance to have a good time. It was a distinct credit to those who engineered the affair, and Chief Marshal Edward Anderson in behalf of all those who helped to organize the parade desires to thank the public for the interest taken.

Interval Dancing Academy has arranged a special reception for its patrons on Tuesday evening, Oct.
31, at the Temperance Hall. This reception in the form of an All Hallowe'en party and refreshments, and dancing will be given. Dancing 8:30 to 11:30. Three very novel features have been arranged and Kiferle's full orchestra will furnish music.

Baseball Notes.
Amby McConnell played the game of his life during the Cub-White Sox series in Chicago.

Wintering in Chicago did not agree with Johnny Evers, and the star second baseman will return to his home in Troy, N. Y.

Manager Joe McGlinthy thinks he has found a star in Tony Walsh, the first baseman turned over to Newark
by the Chicago Cubs.

By deserting the Giants, "Bugs" Raymond lost a lovely bunch of regular money. His salary and share of world's series money would have been some bundle.

Chicago and Pittsburgh were the only teams in the National league, and Detroit and Washington the only teams in the American league to play the full schedule of 154 games.

Nick Sornbluh, of Savannah, Ga., has been elected president of the South

Atlantic league, and Augusta and Charleston have been dropped from the organization, reducing the circuit to six clubs.

At a recent meeting of the Cotton States league the salary limit was reduced to $1,250 for 12 players including the manager. A. Lewis, of Jackson, Miss., was elected president of the organization.

Changes in the big leagues now being talked of are: Manager George Stovall, of Cleveland, to manage the Washington team; Charlie Wagner, of the Boston Red Sox, to manage the Cincinnati Reds and George McBride, of Washington, to join the Boston Red Sox.

Jimmy McAleer is confident that Jack Stahl will consent to play again and to join the Boston Red Sox.

The Cardinals' defeat at the hands of the Browns and the White Sox killing the Cubs were the real surprises of the post-season games.

By playing in every position on the Denver team W. J. Koworth equalled the record made by "Runt" Walsh, of the Philadelphia Nationals.

Charlie Comiskey's door-sliding party, forty strong, is enjoying camp at near-Merger, Wis. This is the 12th annual outing under the chaperonage of the White Sox manager.

While we have a great variety of made-up winter wraps for women, misses and children, consisting of all sorts of fashionable coats, we want to call your attention particularly to our outtings for the young girls and their junior sisters. Many new styles in dresses and coats; prices very moderate; special inducements for mothers to bring them here. The little girls going to school; many have a long distance to go and should be dressed warm. We have just the sort of coat you want to buy for them; very beautiful and attractive in style; distinctive, entirely different from what you buy around the cheap, ready-made stores.
The prices are reasonable; every color you can think of. Navy, brown and wine are very popular. Some are made double breasted; some with flannel lining;
standing and turn down collars, inlaid with velvet;
deep cuffs of broad cloth and contrasting shades;
trimmed with pretty metal buttons. We solicit your trade in this department.

Women's and Misses' Dresses at Half and Less Than Half on Sale Wednesday A. M.

Here's a simple statement of the fact:
We've made a careful investigation of stock on hand in the women's section and routed out some garments that will make excellent bargains with prices cut. As enthusiasm to make Wednesday a big bargain day took possession of the one who welded the blue pencil, a good size stock of garments soon piled up. They're on a special rack for the first comers Wednesday morning. Here's how the prices run:

$2.50 for regular $5.00 Dresses
$4.95 for regular $10.00 Dresses

BED CLOTHING
BARGAINS
That shouldn't be missed. It is the unusual that brings such bargains at the very threshold of cold weather, and in the face of a high market.
There's a saving opportunity in every item in the sale of

Bed Clothing
now in full career.

Not a fair price just once in a while, but always a fair price—very often a less price. Think of it! And—every price is for quality, probably a more important statement. This talk is especially in reference to the sixth floor

Carpet Room
which is now full of good floor coverings, curtains, drapery, etc.—of quality at a price.
